Ref: (a) North Africa Background Materials

(c) XXX Corps OpOrder
(d) XXX Corps FragO 18 Nov 41

Encl: (1) Individual Assignments
(2) Schedule

1. Purpose. Commanders Battle Training (CBT) is designed for the unit commanders of the battalion to practice fighting as a team. CBT will provide training opportunities for:
 - a. Communicating using verbal orders.
 - b. Understanding the Battalion commander's tactical priorities, thought processes, and techniques of communicating orders and intent.
 - c. Gaining insight on battalion tasks: "What capabilities does our battalion need?"
 - d. Discussing tactical and doctrinal issues.
2. Discussion. To achieve the above goal, a Corps-level historical battle will be simulated. This mechanism will allow the participants to examine Brigade and Division combat in order to gain insight into tasks given to infantry battalions and the role the infantry battalion plays in larger formations.
3. Execution
 - a. Concept of Operations
 - (1) The simulated battle is the British advance on German-held Sidi Rezegh, 19 November 1941, during the Crusader offensive in North Africa. The 2/5 conference room will be divided into a 'friendly' (British) side and an 'OpFor' (German) side. A neutral controller, the sole interface with the computer simulation, will receive orders and direction from both sides, and report back to both sides.
 - (2) The Bn CO is commander of British XXX Corps. All participants are assigned either to XXX Corps staff or as commanders of subordinate units. See Encl (1). The Corps staff has (3) copies of Ref (a). The Corps S-2 has Ref (b). All commanders will be issued Ref (c), a map, and their specific Annex A. Ref (d), the Corps FragO, as well as an updated situation map, will be issued at the conclusion of the OpOrder brief.

- (3) During the exercise, Corps staff and subordinate commanders are co-located, which enables excellent communication. Six orders will be generated, a new one every ninety minutes, each representing four hours of actual combat.

b. Tasks

- (1) Commanders. Read XXX Corps order prior to OpOrder brief. Attend brief. Compose initial order immediately following brief. Maintain situation map during execution. Issue (5) written orders during exercise.
- (2) S-2. Brief enemy situation at OpOrder brief. Maintain OOB information.
- (3) Controller. Play the role of every subordinate commander. Execute orders received, update each HHQ.

c. Coordinating Instructions

- (1) Schedule. See Enclosure (2).
- (2) All orders will simulate radio traffic. Commanders will produce a written transcript of the order that they would normally pass by radio. No graphics are permitted.

4. Admin and Logistics. Omitted.

5. Command and Signal. Omitted.
